Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About two years ago I was a great sufferer from a severe female trouble, pains and headaches. The doctor prescribed for me and finally told me that I had a tumor on the womb and must undergo an operation if I wanted to get well. I felt that this was my death warrant, but I spent hundreds of dollars for medical help, but the tumor kept growing. Fortunately I corresponded with an aunt in the New England States, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was said to cure tumors. I did so and immediately began to improve in health, and I was entirely cured, the tumor disappearing entirely, without an operation. I wish every suffering woman would try this great preparation."

The Times' Daily Short Story.

I had prospected in the Colorado gold regions and sunk many a hole. My ideas of fortune had begun with visions of owning one of the big mines of the state, had been reduced to making a few hundred thousand dollars and had finally settled into discouragement and a decision to go home as poor as I had come. This I did not relish, for I had a girl there whom I had left several years before with a lordly scorn at her suggestion that I should settle down to hard work at home, with her to keep house for me and do the hewing of wood and drawing of water. I would go west, make a fortune, and she would have a corps of servants to do the hew ing and the drawing.

I gathered up my camp kit, put my pick on my shoulder and started off in an aimless fashion. I was not settled in my mind what to do. At home there was poverty with Sara; where I was, there was poverty alone. It was pride that made me irresolute about returning. Passing a cleft in some mixed rock and earth, a prospecting instinct was still strong enough in me to induce me to put the point of my pick into it. Almost immediately I took out a nugget which from its looks I judged might be worth $5,000 or $6,000. All my wild dreams, recuired to me, and I dug on, expecting to make a strike; but, though I spent several days at the work, I found no more gold in paying quantities. Then I resolved to go home. I came to this resolution in the evening and after scratching my initials on my nugget went to sleep. The next morning it was gone. Some one passing must have seen me sleeping and robbed me.

I had thrown aside a few lumps from my hole for more careful inspection and now examined them, finding three of aggregate value sufficient to pay my expenses to the east. I was still determined to go home.

In the stagecoach that was to take me to the railroad among the passengers were two who were noticeable, a awaggering miner with a pistol strapped to each hip and a diminutive traveling parson. The miner admitted that he carried $10,000 worth of dust in his belt and would like to see the man who would get it away from him The parson was beside himself with dread lest road agents should attack us, starting at every sound from withhad once beaten off half a dozen robden stop. The miner, being nearest, was ordered out first. He stepped out nimbly enough. The robber took off his revolvers and slung them by the belt over his own shoulder, then ordered him to disgorge. The miner handed him a lump which at a glauce I recognized as my nugget. I got out next. then the others, except the parson. who shrank into a corner whimpering:

"Come out o' that," roared the robber, "or I'll make a hole in you!"

This threat seemed to throw the little parson into a spasm of fear. He still shrank back, piteously begging the robber to spare his life. The robber put his head and shoulders into the stage, seized him by the collar and was dragging him roughly out, the rifle meanwhile being lowered, when we heard a shot, and the robber rolled back on to the coach steps face upward. There was a small round hole in his forehead from which the blood

The quickest change I ever saw in my life was in the parsan. He was bending forward with a smoking Der- Bldg ringer in his hand which he had held in his alceve and with which he had, quick as a flash, shot the robber. Seeing the latter quite dead, he sprang forward, kicked the body down on to the ground, and ordered me to go to the horses' heads and unloosen the reins, which were tied around a forward wheel; then, as the miner stooped to take his pistols from the dend robber, the parcon drammed him back by the collar and in a twinkling clapped a pair of bracelets on his wrists.

"Jim Maxey," he said to his prisoner, "I came up from Denver for you. You're wanted for the Simpson robbery.

The effect of this sudden change was reviving to all save Maxey, who was sullen enough. I told the detective that the nugget the thief had passed to the road agent was mine, and be said that I could have it if I could prove property. This was easy, for I had only to mention the mark I had put upon ft. He examined it and gave me my property at once, being convinced that I owned it and not caring to put me to the delay and risk of getting it after his prisoner was turned in.

In another week I was at home, and when I told Sara that I had sufficient capital with which to begin the world the practical girl declared that it was more than she ever expected I would bring back. My nugget agreeably disout. The miner was telling how he appointed me by bringing $7.800. I spent a few hundred of it in developing bers single handed, when a shot was the hole from which it was taken, but heard, the driver came tumbling from without uncarthing gold in paying the box and the coach came to a sud- quantities. She broke out all over her body with a humor, and we used everything recommended, but without results. I called in three doctors, they all claimed they could help without results. I called in three doctors, they all claimed they could help her, but she continued to grow worse. Her body was a mass of sores, and her little face was caten away, her cars looked as if they would drop off. Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and before I had used half of the cake of soap and box of ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's face and body was as clear as a new-born babe's. body was as clear as a new-born babe's. ### WHY I AM AN ENTHUSIAST

It is very seldom that you hear of the writer of the "Ads" of a proprietary remedy taking the medicine himself, yet such is the case with the writer of these lines. Early last fall I found that I was not up to my standard in weight. I had a friend who was converted with the Marce Woulden. DR. F. M. LYNDE, Dentist. weight. I had a friend who was connected with the Magee Emulsion Co.
and he stated that he really and conscientiously believed that Magee's Emulsion would build me up. I was all right in every way except that I was thin, so having a natural aversion to taking medicine, I hesitated. My friend assured me, however, that I would not reget taking his advice, so I started taking the medicine. I began picking up from the start, and in eleven weeks from the time I had started taking it,
I had gained ten pounds,—about a pound I had gained ten pounds,—about a pound a week. I was so impressed with this result that I determined to become interested in this wonderful remedy. therefore went to Troy to see if this could be arranged. I was successful in my negotiations and accordingly severed my connections in New York, in order to take hold of this most marvel-

What is in Magoe's Emulsion that works such wonders? Surely it must be more than an ordinary preparation. That is just the secret of its fleshproducing powers. It contains nothing but what is of benefit to the system— no waste material, no artificial stimu-lants that fill the patient with hope and then when the reaction comes leaves him worse off than before. All it con tains it pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, Diastasic Extract of Malt and Hypo-phosphites of Lime and Soda. Could any more beneficial combination be taken into the system? Cold Liver Oil produces the fat, Malt Extract is a food and develops the fat, and Hypophos phites are a tonic.

Don't be deceived by the wine preparations claiming to have the active principles of Cod Liver Oil without the all itself. These claims are absurd.

You cannot get the active principles un-less you take the oil.

Cod Liver Oil is not offensive when properly emulsified. The disagreeable features are due to the use of cheap fish oil or the lower grades of cod liver oil which have not passed through the several stages of refinement. Magee's Emulsion is most palatable because it contains pure oil from fresh cod livers and also because the malt disguieses what little oil taste there is left. Remember it contains no wine, no whiskey; it is just food. You can obtain Magee's Emulsio
